Program

Variety’s Community-based Work Assessment utilizes behavior-analytic concepts, multiple job exposure opportunities, and six separate assessment facets. This assessment includes a job skills baseline, social skills baseline, functional behavior assessment, preference assessment, sensory profile, and social supports web. The goal of this intensive assessment is to clearly and comprehensively define the strengths, interests, and barriers to successful community employment in an individualized way.

How It Works

Assessments take 20 hours, three hours per day for a straight week, and 5 hours to aggregate the data for a report. The assessment report will be submitted within ten days of the completion of the assessment. The purpose of such an intensive assessment is to gather information through multiple trials to measure baseline, response to instruction, and response to intervention.
